participatory processes to democratize common issues, step by step

Processes is a space that allows to create, activate/deactivate, and manage various participatory processes. These are distinguished from other spaces by being structured in different phases within which all of the components can be incorporated. Examples of participatory processes are: an election process for members of a committee, participatory budgeting, a strategic planning process, the collaborative writing of a regulation or norm, the design of an urban space or the production of a public policy plan.

assemblies the power of collective self-organization

Is a space that offers the possibility of setting decision-making bodies or groups (councils, working groups, committees, etc.) that meet up periodically, detailing their composition, listing and geolocating their meetings, and allowing to take part in them (for instance: attending if the seating capacity and nature of the assembly so permits, adding items to the agenda, or commenting on the proposals and decisions taken by that body).

consultations the right to decide with all democratic guarantees

Consultations is a space that makes it possible to coordinate referendums, trigger discussions and debates, get voting results published; it can be connected to a secure e-voting system.

initiatives setting everyone's agenda, within everyone's reach

Initiatives is a space that allows participants to collaboratively create initiatives, define their trajectory and goals, gather endorsements, discuss, debate and disseminate initiatives and define meeting points where signatures can be collected from attendees or debates opened to other members of the organization.

proposals your ideas in detail

The proposals component allows the user to create a proposal using a creation wizard, compare it with the existing ones, publish it on the platform and include additional information such as geolocation or attached documents and images. This component also allows you to navigate, filter and interact with a set of proposals. In addition, with the proposal-incubator you can create collaborative proposals.

results no proposal without an answer

The results component is used to turn proposals into results and give official responses concerning their acceptance or rejection, merging various proposals into a single result.

voting decide your vote

The voting component offers organizations the possibility of activating different voting or support systems around proposals: unlimited, limited to a given threshold, weighted, cost-based, etc.

accountability transparency from beginning to end

The accountability component offers the possibility of subdividing results into projects, defining and applying progress statuses around their implementation, as well as displaying the extent of the results' implementation grouped by categories and scopes.

The screenshot shows the 'Ajuntament de Barcelona' Decidim interface. At the top, there's a search bar and navigation links for 'Ajuda', 'Tractades', 'Activitat', and a user profile. The main header is red and contains the breadcrumb: 'Processos / Imaginem el nou eixbarri de Ca n'Ametller / Propostes'. Below this, there's a 'Nova proposta +' button and a sidebar with filters for 'Estat' (Totas, Aceptada, En avaluació, No resposta, Rebutjada) and 'Origen' (Oficial, Ciutadania, Grups). The main content area lists several proposals with their titles, authors, dates, and status:

Monthly community calls to discuss features of Decidim

Carol Romero | 13/11/2020 17:38 | 7 comentarios | 9 adhesiones

How would you feel about organizing a monthly virtual call to have some discussions on specific topics?

For example, most of you know that next year we want to carry out an in-depth review of the platform's participant experience. We already have some ideas and prototypes of what some of those changes could look like (in the filter system, in the card system, etc.) and would be cool to discuss them.

Or debates like the one that @Ferranrg suggested here:

Barcelona's Participatory Budgeting (2020-2023)

- 30 million euros
- 1,982 citizen proposals (823 selected to prioritize)
- 375 meetings
- 73,490 interactions (20,772 face-to-face and 52,718 through Decidim.Barcelona)
- + 50,000 new participants in Decidim
- 39,433 people took part in the final vote, casting a total of 216,628 votes (each participant voted an average of 5.6 projects).

decidim.barcelona/participatory budgeting

A real story

- In 2020, the city of Barcelona launched for the first time a Participatory Budgeting process, in which citizens directly decided how to spend part of the public budget in each district.
- The available budget was 30 million euros.

Reform of the Julià de Capmany Sports Field for the practice of minority sports

Ana · 21/05/2020 14:46

- Brief description:

Conditioning and refurbishment of the Julià de Capmany Sports Field for the practice of minority sports, mainly Cricket-

-Extended description:

We are a group of young people who practice Cricket 11 as part of the Cricket Love project at Bcn and Convivim Esportivament and we train every Saturday at Camp Julià de Capmany, in the Sants-Montjuïc district, like many other cricket teams.

The conditions in which this field is located are not suitable for the practice of the sport. Many times we have not been able to train due to the deterioration of the facilities of the track and the environment. The floor is in very poor condition and we may be injured. There is no storage space or locker room, no water point.

The demand for playground cricket has grown in recent years. In Barcelona there are about 400 players and cricket players organized in more than 25 teams, without any adequate space to be able to train or play matches.

Given these circumstances, we propose a comprehensive reform of the field, conditioning the space to the needs of Barcelonans who practice minority sports who can share the same design of the space. A series of equipment would be needed: a low grass floor, water point, lighting, changing rooms, seating areas, a module to leave the material, among other things.

Football-mad Barcelona votes to build cricket oval

A public vote to create a €1.2m ground took the city's authorities by surprise, but the sport has become increasingly popular there

When Barcelona gave its citizens the chance to vote on a €30m package of new facilities ranging from cycle lanes to playgrounds, officials were stumped when the proposal that got the most votes was the creation of a cricket ground.

The crack of leather on willow is not a sound you associate with the Catalan capital, but out of 822 projects, the cricket ground got the most votes. This was all thanks to a campaign led by a group of young women.

"It all began three years ago in secondary school when the gym teacher said: 'Right, we're going to start a cricket club out of school hours. Who's up for it?'" said Hifsa Butt, 20, the eldest of the group.
